EXPLANATORY NOTE

There is a revolution looming in the horizon and the claws of this phenomenal event is felt all over not only for the highly urbanized areas but also in the countryside where it is greatly affecting the lives of the common populace. This revolution I'm referring to is the industrialization and agricultural modernization. In order to meet this challenges of the modern times, in order for us to keep pace with our growing economy, in order for us to inculcate in the parochial minds of our studentry, the need to attune to the mechanics of industrialization, we should establish a facility to cater to all these.

It is in this regard that this bill creating the Beguin Agro-Industrial High School is filed. Now is the proper time that the extension high school in Beguin be declared autonomous of its mother school, the Bulan National High School, so that the educational institution to be created will be granted a separate budget in the National Appropriation intended for this purpose. This measure will also expand the scope of the secondary school's curriculum to include important subjects necessary for the attainment of the above-mentioned goals.

The creation of an extension school of Bulan National High School (BNHS) in Barangay Beguin is an answer to the congestion suffered by the students in the said school. With more or less 7,000 high school students in attendance, it is a wise move. Two more extension schools in Otavi and San Juan Bag-O have been created out of BNHS to cater to the needs of its ever-growing student population. They are also spared from travelling more than five kilometers to attend to their studies.

With its classrooms, facilities and teachers already established and provided, all the students wanted - together with their parents, the Municipal Officials of Bulan, the Officials of the Province of Sorsogon and the Division Office of DECS - is for them to have an independent school: a school which they can call their own.
