THIRTEENTH CONGRESS

First Regular Session

House Bill No. 219

Introduced by Hon. Rozzano Rufino B. Biazon

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Many government objectives are subordinated to conformity to rules and regulations that, sadly, hamper their realization.

Programs of whatever nature, whether government or private, usually require a certain length of time to realize its goals. The person at the helm should thus enjoy a length of service – even better, a security of tenure – that would allow him/her adequate time to plan, test, execute matters to best achieve a desired end. This is even more imperative in the case of key government positions such as the Chief of Staff and the Major Service Commanders that constitute the core leadership of the AFP, whose tenure, though limited by the Constitution to three years, is even shortened by compulsory retirement laws.

Such situation thus puts a damper on the selection of individuals for vacancies as the President's choices are limited to senior officers whose retirements draw near and thus casts a shadow on the President's action as being politically driven.

With the positions in question being critical to the country's interests, it is perhaps only correct that the persons chosen to serve in such capacity be the best, not necessarily among the most senior, and enjoy a period of service that will allow him/her to implement programs and thus deliver on the objectives of the armed forces.

This bill endeavors to shield the selection process for such positions from political and personal considerations, by ensuring that merit and fitness prevail. It also grants security of tenure to ensure continuity of programs and better, free from patronage, performance.

With the foregoing considerations, the passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
