AN ACT
AMENDING REPUBLIC ACT NO. 7394, OTHERWISE KNOWN AS
"CONSUMER ACT OF THE PHILIPPINES" BY IMPOSING STIFFER
PENALTIES FOR ANY PERSON, NATURAL OR JURIDICAL, WHO OFFERS
TO SELL OR DISTRIBUTE, IN WHOLE OR IN PART, ADULTERATED MEAT
PRODUCT/S OF A DISEASED ANIMAL OR AN ANIMAL WHICH HAS DIED
OTHER THAN BY SLAUGHTER, OTHERWISE TERMED AS "DOUBLE DEAD
MEAT", AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The protection of public health is the primary duty of the State. It is the mandate of the State to protect and promote the well being of its citizens. Towards this end, it is the primordial duty of the State to protect the interests of consumers, promote their general welfare and establish standards of conduct for business and industry.

Article 23 of Republic Act No. 7394, otherwise known as the "Consumer Act of the Philippines", specifically provides that food shall be deemed to be adulterated if it is, in whole or in part, the product of a diseased animal or of an animal which has died other than by slaughter. Furthermore, Art. 41 of the same Act provides that any person who sells double dead meat shall, upon conviction, be subject to imprisonment of not less than one (1) year but not more than five (5) years, or a fine of not less than Five Thousand Pesos (P5,000.00) but not more than Ten Thousand Pesos (P10,000.00), or both such imprisonment and fine, upon the discretion of the Court.

However, despite the existence of a law that prohibits and penalizes the selling of double dead meat, the proliferation of double dead meat in the market remains unabated.

According to the National Meat Inspection Service (NMIS), last May 2008, about three (3) tons of pork and 63 kilos of buffalo meat were being sold by around 10 stalls outside the market for about P80-P90 per kilo. Moreover, last November 5, 2008, health officials reported that at least one villager died and 53 others became ill after eating "double dead" meat during a wake in the remote upland town of Suyo in Ilocos province.

Consumers are especially attracted to buy double dead meat because of its relatively low price. This type of meat is widely considered to be harmful to consumers' health since the animals most likely died from various illnesses before being butchered and sold. This meat has a grayish tint to it which clearly indicates that blood had spread throughout the animal's flesh for not having undergone the normal slaughter procedures. The continued proliferation of "hot or double-dead meat" deemed unfit for human consumption in various markets pose a health hazard to unsuspecting consumers.

As such, there is an urgent need to enact legislative intervention that will increase the penalty for persons, natural or juridical, found selling or distributing double dead meat in order to protect the health and welfare of the general public.

In view of the foregoing, early passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
