HOUSE BILL No. 1005

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Republic Act No. 6713 otherwise known as the Code of Conduct and Ethical Standards for Public Officials and Employees was enacted on February 20, 1989 primarily to promote a high standard of ethics in public service. This landmark legislation specially mandates that "Public officials and employees have an obligation to accomplish and submit declarations under oath of, and the public has right to know, their assets, liabilities, net worth (SALN) and financial and business interests including those of their spouses and of unmarried children under eighteen (18) years of age living in their households". (Underscoring supplied).

Notwithstanding this explicit mandate, the Supreme Court came up with a directive that any request for a copy of SALN of any Justice may be denied to shield them allegedly from "deceptive request" for information that could lead to intimidation, harassments and "fishing expeditions". This directive therefore clearly defeats the noble objectives of the law that the State shall promote a high standard of ethics in public service, that the public has right to know and that public officials shall uphold public interest over and above personal interest.

It is therefore the paramount objective of this bill is to plug whatever loopholes in the law by providing for the centralization of filing the SALN with the Office of the Ombudsman thru the respective offices as mentioned in the law and to authorize its disclosure to the public without any condition. The controversy generated by the refusal of the Supreme Court to disclose to the public the SALN of the Chief Justice will not be repeated as the Office of the Ombudsman will now be the repository of the SALN of public officials beyond the control of the heads of offices.

The foregoing reasons warrant the immediate approval of this bill.
