EXPLANATORY NOTE

Regarding a comment on Republic Act 9502 or The Universally Accessible Cheaper and Quality Medicines Act of 2008, an article in the UP Forum cited the observations made by Dr. Monet M. Loquias from the Institute of Health Policy and Development Studies of the National Institute of Health. According to Dr. Loquias, the lack of a self-reliant pharmaceutical industry has left the country at the mercy of multi-national's which have dominated drugs supply and pricing, and even policy and practices through their powerful marketing machinery. She said that local drug manufacturers still have to import ingredients from abroad and thus, cannot reduce prices of medicines significantly. For cheaper medicines, she stated, the country is left with no other option but to import them from countries such as India, which has its own thriving pharmaceutical industry.

Consequently, in this kind of set-up, importation of active and inactive ingredients of drugs by drug companies is widespread making their products vulnerable to containing subpotent or superpotent concentrations of active ingredients, or having unknown inactive ingredients, or being manufactured using methods that render the product impure.

Intending to improve the labeling standards in view of protecting the health of Filipino citizens, this bill requires country of origin labeling on prescription and over-the-counter drugs because we can never allow in this country that medications be the very source of illnesses.

Buhay Hayaan Yumabong proposed this Bill last 15th Congress and was referred to the Committee on Health for deliberation.

The approval of this bill is earnestly requested.
