EXPLANATORY NOTE

The installation of Closed Circuit Televisions Surveillance Cameras (CCTVs) in public places in the United Kingdom and many countries in Europe has generated raging controversy for the reason that it is violative of the right to privacy of citizens. Law enforcement authorities in these countries justified that CCTVs are valuable tools which contribute to public safety and security and in protecting both people and property. These facts therefore outweigh the issue on the invasion of privacy.

The popularity of using CCTV surveillance cameras has increased tremendously over the past few years. In the United States, the heated debates on the issue of privacy had been toned down when the culprits in the recent terrorist attack at the Boston Marathon had been identified as the action was caught on a surveillance camera that led to immediate solution of the crime.

In our country when record of crime incidents is at its highest level, the installation of CCTV surveillance cameras will certainly help not only to reduce the crime rates but also to solve crimes.

It is therefore the paramount objective of this bill to require commercial establishments to install, operate and maintain CCTVs within their premises in order to deter individuals from committing crime. And if in case the crime has been consummated, the possibility of apprehending the culprit is high with the aid of surveillance cameras.

The foregoing reasons warrant the approval of this measure.
