HOUSE BILL NO. 3174

Introduced by: Hon. Angelina "Helen" D.L. Tan, M.D.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

News and reports on escape of prisoners have cast doubt on the ability of law enforcement agencies and penal institutions to effectively undertake custody of inmates and convicts.

To cite an example, a detainee who was locked up inside the detention cell of the local police station, in Nueva Ecija, escaped from a hospital where he was rushed following a scuffle with fellow inmates.

It was reported that inside the detention cell, an inmate figured in a brawl with other inmates where he got beaten up prompting the police to dispatch a three-man team, which rushed the badly bruised inmate to the San Jose City General Hospital.

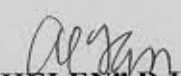

Accordingly, while being treated, said inmate's police escorts waited outside the hospital room. While the nurse was attending to the inmate, another bloodied patient was brought into the room, which triggered a commotion because of kibitzers who gathered around the said patient and in the ensuing commotion, the inmate escaped, using the backdoor (http://www.philstar.com/nation/615556/wounded-ecija-inmate-escapes hospital).

Records also show that a total of 887 inmates detained in prison facilities under the Bureau of Corrections (BuCor), including the New Bilibid Prison (NBP), escaped during the period 2000 up to April 2011 (<http://www.abs-cbnnews.com/nation/06/10/11/887-inmates-escaped-last-decade>).

This bill seeks to strengthen the correctional system of the country, promote the general welfare and safeguard the basic rights of every prisoner through the establishment hospital ward for prisoners in all public hospitals throughout the country.

While this may not totally address such concern for effective and efficient custody of inmates and convicts, the proposed measure will nonetheless be a critical factor in resolving this predicament.

In view thereof, approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
