SIXTEENTH CONGRESS
Third Regular Session

House Bill No. 6459

Introduced by Congressman Alfredo D. Vargas III

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Children below six years old are mostly unaware of what a "normal" vision is. Thus, they are unlikely to complain of vision problems. Since vision is closely linked to a child's learning process, undetected learning-related vision problems may lead to trouble with the student's schoolwork.¹

Early detection of vision problems is very important and has a considerable impact on the life of the student. Poor vision in childhood affects performance in school and may have a negative effect on the future of the child². A vision problem noticed at the stage of adolescence may lead to more serious eye disorders, like blindness, if left untreated.

This bill seeks to establish a national vision screening program for kindergarten pupils. Vision screening is an efficient and cost-effective method to identify children with visual impairment or eye conditions³. This initiative also aims to create a referral system in order for visually impaired students to be checked for further evaluation and treatment.

For these reasons, approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
