HOUSE BILL NO. 6360

Introduced by Representative Sharon S. Garin

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Recent studies have shown that the average age of the Filipino farmer is 57 years old. This would show that under most retirement and pension schemes, majority of our farmers should already qualify for pension and retirements benefits, if they were included in the coverage. Sad to say, agricultural workers and other workers in the informal sector are not covered by pension programs of the government either through the GSIS, SSS or other special laws.

This is a huge injustice considering that the agricultural sector is among the most important sector in the country, contributing P13 billion or about 9% of the GDP and agricultural workers making up 26.1% of the country's labor force or about 11.29 million workers. This means that more than one-fourth of the country's labourers are not covered by retirement and pension benefits.

Our senior citizen farmers and agricultural workers are forced to continue working long hours in undesirable conditions, just to continue to support themselves and their families. This could lead to health issues considering their advanced age and frail dispositions.

This lack of long-term benefits, in addition to the low income and intensive work are perhaps also one of the reasons why less and less people are entering and working in the agricultural sector. This continuing decline of agricultural workers would spell disaster for our food security in the future should it be allowed to continue.

Our farmers remain the poorest of the poor among the country's labor force and it is only right that the government extend all manner of support towards them. Giving them the benefit of a pension is just one of the many ways of providing them the social protection that they rightfully deserve.

In view of the foregoing, passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
