AN ACT
PROVIDING FOR A MONTHLY INTERNET ALLOWANCE
FOR ALL PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS
AND APPROPRIATING FUNDS THEREFOR

EXPLANATORY NOTE

As provided in the 1987 Constitution, Article XIV, Section 1, "The State shall protect and promote the right of all citizens to quality education at all levels and shall take appropriate steps to make such education accessible to all." To fulfill this mandate even during this COVID-19 pandemic, the Department of Education (DepEd) approved the blended learning program which proposes various approaches or methods of learning, such as distance learning and online learning.

However, it is highly unlikely that the said constitutional mandate will indeed be met, as majority of public school teachers are unprepared and unable to adopt this kind of method due to lack of reliable internet connection.

During the first week of June 2020, teachers nationwide—including those in urban centers where internet connection is supposed to be stronger—have already struggled with various tasks requiring the use of information and communications technology, from online enrolment of students, online in-service trainings, video conferences and meetings, online reading of forms, up to preparation of online classroom and instructional materials for the school opening on August 24, 2020. With such bulk of online tasks and substantial need for digital access, teachers who only rely mostly on mobile data cannot fulfill such duties. A reliable internet connection is a vital component for DepEd's alternative work schemes such as work-from-home arrangements and distance learning.

With their measly salaries barely sufficient to provide for their personal needs and that of their families, teachers now face the constant choices of how much they must tighten their belts or whether they could be frugal at the expense of their students. Neither decision is humane, just, or acceptable. Government must not leave public school teachers to their own devices, especially considering that this need for stable Internet access is for their official duties as teachers, and for them to fulfill a core function of government—the delivery of public education.

Hence, this bill seeks to grant all public school teachers an amount of P1,500 as a monthly Internet allowance to help them cope with the requirements of the blended learning program, deliver the outputs of distance education which are expected of them, and adjust to the demands in education brought by the COVID-19 pandemic.

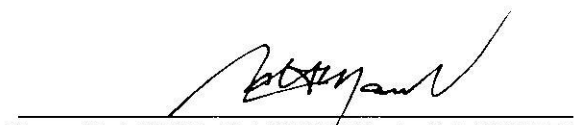

For the foregoing reasons, urgent approval of this bill is sought.
