NINETEENTH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

HOUSE BILL NO. 3134

Introduced by Rep. Ray Florence T. Reyes

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Data compiled by the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA), based on submitted death certificates from local government units within the past few years, places ischaemic heart disease as the leading cause of death in Filipinos. Among other leading diseases are diabetes, pneumonia, lower respiratory tract infections, and "neoplasms" or cancer.

Based on the above-cited data, a large number of deaths recorded in the Philippines can be prevented if our countrymen have access to hospitals catering to their specific health needs.

While measures have been made to ensure that hospitals are accessible to all Filipinos all over the country, specialty hospitals such as the Philippine Heart Center (PHC), Lung Center of the Philippines (LPC), National Kidney and Transplant Institute (NKTi), Philippine Cancer Center, and the Philippine Children's Medical Center (PCMC) are only found in Metro Manila.

This bill seeks to democratize access to the services being rendered by the medical facilities mentioned in the foregoing by creating regional iterations, and providing funds therefor.

As poverty incidences in the Philippines rise, Filipinos are torn between spending money for their health, and their everyday needs. With specialty hospitals only being located in Metro Manila, our countrymen who live in the provinces and geographically isolated and disadvantaged areas (GIDAs) are forced to forgo their health needs, as seeking medical attention would also mean allocating funds for transportation and lodging in Manila — funds which they may already have none or little access of.

It is the hope of this representation that the enactment of this bill can provide ease of access to specialty hospitals to our countrymen in the rural areas. Through this bill, we ensure that special medical services for specific conditions are brought to them, rather than have them spend more of their savings for specialized health care in the National Capital Region.

In view of the foregoing, immediate passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
