AN ACT
PROVIDING FOR THE FAIR AND EQUITABLE ALLOCATION OF FARM-TO-MARKET ROADS PROJECTS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Farm-to-market roads offer distinct advantages to the agricultural sector. One, it increases farmers' profit, reduces transportation costs and post-harvest losses and introduces competition among traders and suppliers alike. Second, it provides access to social services and agricultural support services, which in turn improves productivity of farm workers and enhances agricultural efficiency.

Farm-to-market roads also serve other developmental roles in the countryside. In an Asian Development Bank (ADB) study on the effectiveness of poverty reduction interventions on agrarian reform communities in the Philippines, it was observed that rural infrastructure – roads, in particular – has the strongest impact on poverty. Rural road development can lead to influx of micro and small investments, short-term employment, enhancement of quality and frequency of public transportation, and improved access to medical, health, and other social services. As former National Economic Development Authority Director General Arsenio Balisacan argued, "investment in land quality and in access to infrastructure, together with sound fundamentals (i.e., fiscal and monetary restraint), are critical to the building of initial conditions for broad-based growth and development."

For Fiscal Year 2022, P7.49 billion was appropriated under the budget of the Department of Agriculture (DA) for farm-to-market road projects. However, such appropriations came with no institutionalized mechanism to ensure equitable distribution of government appropriations for farm-to-market roads. This situation renders the allocation of farm-to-market roads vulnerable to exploitation by unscrupulous individuals who seek to further their own personal and political interests.

This bill seeks to make countryside development inclusive through fair and equitable distribution of government resources. It establishes a formula for the allocation of farm-to-market road appropriations, taking into account the exigencies of factors such as land area and population. Additionally, it penalizes willful misallocation of farm-to-market road appropriations with incarceration and perpetual disqualification to hold public office. Through the adoption of criteria for farm-to-market roads allocation, this bill seeks to ensure that no locality will be left behind.

In light of this, the approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
