

Republic of the Philippines
House of Representatives
Quezon City, Metro Manila
Nineteenth Congress
First Regular Session
HOUSE BILL NO. 7221

Introduced by Rep. Anthony R.T. Golez Jr. MD, MBAH

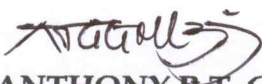

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This representation is supportive of the aim of the current leadership of the House of Representatives in improving the electoral system of the country. The right to vote is a very important part of a country. There is a strong need to continuously promote and improve our elections to protect and uphold the right to vote of Filipinos.

The proposed law herein seeks to further strengthen the Commission on Elections (COMELEC) by increasing its manpower and appropriating office spaces for its operations in different jurisdictions. When approved, the bill herein will provide COMELEC work spaces, which are separate and distinct from local government units. The proposed law will also provide COMELEC the much-needed and long-awaited increase in manpower. It is believed that the independence and integrity of COMELEC and elections will be promoted with the approval of the bill herein. Improving the working conditions in COMELEC, thru having sufficient manpower and office spaces of their own, is seen as a giant step in upholding the right to suffrage of Filipinos.

The need for promoting the right to vote cannot be overemphasized, as the right to vote goes to the very core of being civilized and free. It affords each Filipino to help every Filipino to improve the country and the individual citizen, thru the election of the right and deserving leaders. Nelson Mandela's words elucidates this fact when he said that: "To be free is not merely to cast off one's own chains but to live in a way that respects and enhances the freedom of others."

For the Filipino people, approval of the proposed law herein is earnestly being sought.
