House Bill No. 10762

Introduced by Representative TEODORICO “NONONG” T. HARESCO, JR.

AN ACT
STRENGTHENING THE LEGAL STAFF OF THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE, RENAMING IT AS THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF STATE COUNSEL, REDEFINING, EXPANDING, RATIONALIZING,
AND FURTHER PROFESSIONALIZING ITS ORGANIZATION, AND APPROPRIATING FUNDS THEREFOR

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Department of Justice (DOJ) is the principal law agency which shall be both the government’s “legal counsel and prosecution arm” (Section 1, Chapter 1, Title III, Executive Order No. 292 (Administrative Code of 1987). These core functions are fulfilled by the two main offices in the DOJ proper: the Legal Staff, as legal counsel, and the National Prosecution Service, as the prosecution arm.

The Legal Staff (Office of the Chief State Counsel or OCSC) assists the Secretary of Justice in performing his role as Attorney General. Through the Legal Staff, the President, as well as the Executive branch, in general, fulfills his mandate to “ensure that the laws be faithfully executed.” Such gargantuan task currently rests upon the Chief State Counsel and a very small number of only forty-two (42) state counsels and twenty-six (26) support staff.

From the time it was created under Republic Act (R.A.) No. 2705, as amended by R.A. No. 4152, and the Administrative Code of 1987, the Legal Staff and its functions have evolved and expanded way beyond that contemplated at the time of its creation. Aside from rendering legal opinions, the Legal Staff acts as the Central Authority in matters involving international legal cooperation, i.e., Mutual Legal Assistance Treaty in Criminal Matters (MLA), Extradition, and Transfer of Sentenced Persons (TSP). As Central Authority for these matters, the Legal Staff drafts, negotiates, and implements these treaties.

The Legal Staff, when so requested by the lead agency, also serves as legal adviser, in the negotiation and implementation of other treaties, agreements, and conventions.

On top of this, the Legal Staff likewise attends and represents the DOJ in congressional hearings and technical working group meetings as well as extensively prepares comments and inputs in the drafting of proposed legislations for both houses of Congress.

The work of the Legal Staff does not end there, as it similarly resolves questions of constitutionality or legality of municipal tax ordinances and legal controversies between or among government agencies. Further, the Legal Staff acts on applications for special authority to employ foreign nationals under Commonwealth Act No. 108 or the Anti-Dummy Law, resolve applications for determination of refugee and statelessness status of foreign nationals, and review citizenship and deportation cases initially decided by the Bureau of Immigration.

Truly, the work of the Legal Staff can be said to be low key, but high impact.

Recently, compensation and retirement benefits from the Office of the Ombudsman, the National Prosecution Service, and the Judiciary have been upgraded, leaving the Legal Staff, the government's legal counsel, behind. This has, unfortunately, resulted to several lawyers and personnel of the Legal Staff moving to said offices, hampering the effectiveness of the latter in performing its tasks.

Considering the foregoing, there is a need to improve on the current compensation and benefits that the Legal Staff is receiving. Doing so will prevent the exodus of its lawyers and personnel, and at the same time, ensure that the Legal Staff will attract competent and capable human resource, who will dedicate their life to public service.

It is high time for the Legal Staff of the Department of Justice to be compensated and treated the same as that of the other lawyers in public service.

In the view of the foregoing, the immediate passing of this bill is earnestly sought.
