TWENTIETH CONGRESS
First Regular Session

House Bill No. 368

Introduced by Representative Richard I. Gomez, DPA

EXPLANATORY NOTE

National security is one of the most crucial aspects of governing a nation, most especially now with looming, widespread global unrest, particularly in the West Philippine Sea. At the most fundamental level, a country's survival and prosperity rests largely on its ability to preserve sovereignty, peace and order. It is also, therefore, crucial that the laws, policies, procedures and regulations that define how our country attains and maintains national security, be reflective of the overall mandate of the people, the Filipino people.

The 1987 Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and as such, must precede all other laws, policies and regulations in the country. However, the existing National Defense Act of 1935, which emanated from the 1935 Constitution, does not fully capture the national security and defense mandates of the 1987 Constitution. Nevertheless, 38 years thereafter, the Philippine Government is still operating under the 1935 National Defense Act. It is, therefore, high time that an updated National Defense Act be enacted that reflects the present mandate and integrates economic, social, cultural and political dimensions into the overall defense program.

To fill the gaps of the National Defense Act of 1935, numerous statutes and ministerial orders were issued to facilitate the reorganization of the Philippine Armed Forces. Laws were also enacted to change and update personnel management within the Philippine Armed Forces.

This bill seeks to create a comprehensive national defense legislation to ensure accountability and integrity in the exercise of national security discretion, to achieve efficiency and effectiveness for its members and organizations in the performance of their duties.

This bill mirrors the one filed by Representative Rozzano Rufino B. Biazon during the 18th Congress.

The 1935 National Defense Act was visionary in its time—but national security today demands a law that reflects contemporary threats, leverages modern technology, and supports a self-reliant, responsive, and professional armed force. A new defense act is not just a legal update—it's a foundation for the country's sovereignty, survival, and strategic future.

In view of the foregoing, the passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
