AN ACT
PROVIDING OVERTIME PAY TO PRINCIPALS AND SCHOOL HEADS IN ALL PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND APPROPRIATING FUNDS THEREFOR

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Public school principals or school heads—meaning, those with Principal I to IV items or those not holding Principal I to IV items but are designated with the duties of a school principal—play a pivotal role in ensuring the effective management and delivery of quality education. Their responsibilities extend far beyond the standard eight-hour workday, often requiring them to work up to twelve (12) hours daily due to the demands of their position. Most have “seven-to-seven” workdays or work from 7:00 in the morning until 7:00 in the evening, sometimes for longer periods like in flag ceremony days or whenever there are untoward incidents requiring their attention. In schools with multi-shift schedules, principals are compelled to remain on the school premises to oversee shifts, ensuring the smooth operations of the school as well as the safety of all students, teachers, and school employees. In performance evaluations, they are penalized if not on school premises when an eventuality arises requiring their attention.

Despite these extended working hours, principals and school heads are not compensated for their overtime work, unlike administrative officials and employees in other agencies. This is unpaid work taken for granted by government. While principals and school heads will always choose to undertake this sacrifice in the interest of the students, teachers and other school personnel, this is the long-standing abuse suffered by those considered as the highest administrators at the school level.

But government must not close its eyes to the plight of overworked yet underpaid principals, as this has far-reaching implications not only for the principals but also for the schools they lead and the education system in general. For one, principals' unpaid work leads to physical and mental health issues, burnout, and decreased morale for the principals themselves.

The current situation that compels principals to work beyond regular hours without additional compensation is unjust and unsustainable. It disregards the significant sacrifices made by these school leaders and undermines their ability to perform their duties effectively. Recognizing the need to address this issue, this bill seeks to mandate overtime pay for all public school principals, ensuring that their dedication and hard work are fairly compensated.

The 1987 Constitution, under Article XIV, Section 1, mandates the State to protect and promote the right of all citizens to quality education. To achieve this, the State must ensure that school leaders are adequately supported and compensated for their efforts. This bill aligns with this constitutional mandate by providing principals with the necessary incentives to continue their vital work in shaping the future of the nation's learners.

The Department of Education (DepEd) has long recognized the critical role of principals in achieving its goals of improving learning outcomes and fostering a conducive environment for both teachers and students. However, the lack of overtime pay for principals remains a glaring gap in the support provided to these education leaders. This bill seeks to fill this gap by institutionalizing overtime pay for principals, thereby promoting their welfare and enhancing their capacity to lead effectively.

For these reasons, approval of this bill is earnestly sought.
