EXPLANATORY NOTE

Filipinos who are categorized as poor, marginalized, vulnerable, disabled, and disadvantaged face a greater socio-economic burden of responding to crisis situations, including medical emergencies, disasters, and the sudden death of a relative. As the primary agency responsible for providing social protection, the Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), through its Crisis Intervention Units (CIU) at its central, field, and satellite offices, provides a range of services, such as immediate rescue and provision of direct financial assistance, psychosocial support, and material assistance.¹

One of its programs, the Assistance to Individuals in Crisis Situation (AICS), has been implemented for over a decade and has been pivotal in assisting our kababayans seeking timely assistance from the government. In 2023, DSWD reported that 6,587,667 Filipinos facing difficult circumstances were provided with assistance, which is more than four times the program's annual target of 1,691,869 beneficiaries.² DSWD spokesperson Assistant Secretary Irene Dumlao said that the agency's CIU has assisted 953,560 individuals, disbursing over P8.5 billion in medical aid in the first half of 2025. Reports also show that since its launch in 2014, the AICS medical assistance program has helped over 8.5 million Filipinos.³

Further, historical data indicate that there has been an increasing number of Filipinos seeking assistance under the AICS Program, primarily from remote areas of the country. This increasing demand necessitates a higher budget allocation and putting in place efficient mechanisms for prompt service delivery. Additionally, there is a need for the program to enhance its systems by maximizing digital platforms to streamline its mechanisms and to alleviate abuse in accessing the program.

Section 9, Article II of the 1987 Constitution provides that "State shall promote a just and dynamic social order that will ensure the prosperity and independence of the nation and free the people from poverty through policies that provide adequate social services, promote full employment, a rising standard of living, and an improved quality of life for all." Since the AICS Program has been proven as an effective intervention for social welfare, this bill seeks to ensure the continued and more effective implementation of the program by:

- Establishing an Integrated Program Delivery System, which is a real-time data sharing and centralized database among DSWD, the Philippine Statistics Authority, Department of Health Malasakit Centers, and local government units.
- Mandating the Crisis Intervention entities, from the DSWD national office level down to its satellite offices, to monitor and evaluate the implementation of the AICS Program.
- Mandating the DSWD to conduct monitoring and evaluation to assess the responsiveness of the Program and annually publish its full report.
- Identifying unlawful acts relating to the implementation of the program and its corresponding penalties.
- Requiring the DSWD to pay any public or private entity the amount appearing on the guarantee letter, coupon, or voucher within three months.

This bill was passed in third reading during the 19th Congress, showing the overwhelming support of legislators to institutionalize the AICS Program.

In view of the foregoing, the immediate passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
