HOUSE BILL NO. 3500

Introduced by HONORABLE LORETO “AMBEN” S. AMANTE
Third (3rd) Legislative District, Province of Laguna

AN ACT GRANTING MONTHLY HONORARIUM, CIVIL SERVICE
ELIGIBILITY AND SECURITY OF TENURE TO EVERY BARANGAY
NUTRITION SCHOLAR (BNS), THEREBY AMENDING
PRESIDENTIAL DECREE NO. 1569 ENTITLED
“STRENGTHENING THE BARANGAY NUTRITION PROGRAM BY PROVIDING FOR A BARANGAY NUTRITION SCHOLAR
IN EVERY BARANGAY, PROVIDING FUNDS THEREFOR, AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES”

Explanatory Note

For nearly thirty (30) years, the rates of both wasting and stunting in the Philippines have been nearly flat. For 2019, the rate of stunting among children under five (5) years of age (28.8%) was only slightly lower than in 2008 (32%)—the prevalence of underweight in 2019 was 19% and that of wasting was 6%. Based on the World Health Organization’s classification of undernutrition rates, the stunting prevalence of children in the Philippines is of “very high” public health significance. The Philippines’ 29% stunting rate places it 5th among countries in the East Asia and Pacific Region, and among countries the top 10 countries globally. The Philippines’ high levels of childhood undernutrition can lead to a staggering loss of the country’s human and economic potential.¹ These data provide evidence of why it is critical that the government prioritizes tackling this persistent challenge.

Undernutrition is, and has always been, a serious problem in the Philippines. There are regions with levels of stunting that exceed 40% of the population. In Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao, 45% of children below five (5) are stunted, in Southwestern Tagalog Region (MIMAROPA) 41%, Bicol Region has 40%, Western Visayas 40% and in the south-central Mindanao Region (SOCCSKARGEN) 40%.²

Good nutrition is a foundation for economic prosperity, and investments in nutrition are highly cost-effective. The key determinants of undernutrition are multi-sectoral. At the immediate level, a child becomes undernourished because of inadequate or inappropriate food, health and care.³

While the Government, at present, has the National Nutrition Council (NNC) which is categorically mandated by law to act as the country's highest policy-making and coordinating body on nutrition, the same admits that it requires collaboration in creating and recreating ideas, i.e., seeking unity and totality of approach toward nutritional adequacy among Filipinos.

And aimed to strengthen the nutrition program at the barangay level, Presidential Decree No. 1569 was enacted and initiated the appointment of a Barangay Nutrition Scholar (BNS) for every barangay in the country. The Barangay Nutrition Scholar (BNS), aside from possessing certain qualifications prescribed by law, is a trained barangay worker, with nominal stipend and other allowances in return for their crucial role in barangay to deliver nutrition services and other community health programs.

Prescinding from these perspectives, it is undoubtedly imperative that the BNS should have an unhampered, continued and apolitical position in the community if and when the Government aspires to publicly convey its vigorous efforts to advance successful nutrition intervention schemes in the entire country. And as a pressing step towards attaining the mentioned objective, it is highly essential that the BNS must be accorded with the right to receive Honorarium, Civil Service Eligibility and fully enjoy a Security of Tenure, among others.

This Bill thus seeks to grant the BNS of such enumerated rights as a compelling reason for them to be an effective and efficient instrument to alleviate the various malnutrition predicaments in the country.
