House Bill No. 7132

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The penal laws of the Philippines are principally governed by the Revised Penal Code (RPC), enacted in 1930 and became effective on 01 January 1932. While the RPC has served as the cornerstone of the Philippine criminal justice system for nearly a century, it has become increasingly inadequate in responding to the realities of contemporary society. Over time, numerous amendments, special penal laws, and statutes with penal provisions have been enacted to address emerging forms of criminal behavior. However, these piecemeal legislative interventions have resulted in a fragmented, overlapping, and often incoherent criminal law framework.

In response to these longstanding deficiencies, the proposed Criminal Code of the Philippines seeks to modernize, codify, and harmonize the country's penal laws into a single, comprehensive, and coherent legal framework. The proposed Code is designed to reflect contemporary Filipino values, evolving legal doctrines, and internationally recognized standards, while addressing the complexities of 21st-century criminality.

This legislative initiative intends to propose substantial reforms to the country's penal laws in order to ensure fairness, proportionality, clarity, and effectiveness in the administration of criminal justice.

Traditionally, criminal law has been anchored on the principle of territoriality, whereby a State exercises criminal jurisdiction only over acts committed within its geographic boundaries. However, the nature of criminality has undergone a profound transformation in the modern era. Rapid technological advancements, increased global mobility, and the rise of organized transnational criminal networks have rendered rigid territorial boundaries increasingly ineffective as limits on criminal conduct.

Crimes such as cybercrime, terrorism, and other transnational offenses are frequently conceived, executed, and consummated across multiple jurisdictions. In this context, the extraterritorial application of criminal laws is no longer a mere exception but a legal necessity to ensure effective accountability and the protection of national and public interests.

There are urgent and systemic issues that require immediate legislative action if the State is to remain capable of protecting its citizens and enforcing the rule of law. First, the Revised Penal Code, enacted more than ninety years ago, no longer reflects the realities of contemporary society, rapid technological change, or modern principles of criminal justice. Second, our penal laws have evolved into a fragmented and unsystematic collection of statutes, amendments, and special laws that undermine legal certainty, complicate prosecution, and result in inconsistent standards of criminal liability and punishment. Third, the absence of a modern and coherent criminal law framework has left the State ill-equipped to address emerging and increasingly sophisticated forms of criminality, including cyber-enabled offenses, organized crime, and transnational activities that deliberately exploit legal and jurisdictional gaps. Without decisive legislative reform, these deficiencies will continue to weaken enforcement, frustrate justice, and erode public trust in our institutions.

The proposed Code modernizes the scope of Philippine criminal jurisdiction by expanding the State's authority to prosecute crimes committed outside Philippine territory under clearly defined conditions. This includes offenses committed against Filipino citizens or Philippine-registered entities, as well as crimes perpetrated through computer systems and digital infrastructure located within the Philippines. These provisions ensure that offenders cannot evade accountability by exploiting jurisdictional gaps.

The proposed Code rationalizes and modernizes the system of penalties by adopting a structured classification of offenses and punishments into Afflictive, Correctional, and Light penalties. It introduces contemporary sentencing alternatives, including Community Service for light offenses, thereby promoting proportionality and restorative justice. The Code likewise recognizes the criminal liability of juridical persons, acknowledging that corporations and other entities may be held accountable for criminal conduct.

Consistent with the Philippines' obligations under international law, the proposed Code incorporates comprehensive provisions addressing crimes of international concern, including:

- War Crimes and Crimes Against Humanity, with detailed provisions on genocide and serious violations of International Humanitarian Law;
- Terrorism, including updated definitions and penalties covering the planning, training, financing, and facilitation of terrorist acts; and
- Cybercrime, through a dedicated title addressing illegal access, data interference, identity theft, and other offenses involving digital technologies.

The proposed Code strengthens legal protections for women, children, and other vulnerable groups through clear and robust penal provisions, including:

- Safe Spaces and Sexual Harassment, criminalizing gender-based sexual harassment in both physical and virtual public spaces;
- Rape Law Reform, clarifying the concept of consent and expanding the definition of rape to encompass various forms of sexual violence and assault; and
- Uniform application of marital infidelity law.

To address systemic corruption and abuse of authority, the proposed Code updates and strengthens provisions relating to offenses committed by public officers, including:

- Plunder and Illicit Enrichment, establishing clear thresholds for ill-gotten wealth and providing a thirty (30)-year prescriptive period for prosecution; and
- Public Procurement Offenses, penalizing collusion, bid-rigging, and other fraudulent schemes in government procurement processes.

This proposed Criminal Code of the Philippines is not merely a revision of existing laws but a comprehensive reinvention of the country's penal justice system. By consolidating fragmented statutes, modernizing outdated provisions, and addressing contemporary and transnational forms of criminality—from cyber-enabled offenses to large-scale corruption—this measure ensures that the Philippines remains capable of protecting its citizens, upholding public order, and enforcing accountability in an increasingly complex and interconnected world.

In view of the foregoing, immediate approval of this measure is earnestly requested.

TITLE FOURTEEN QUASI-OFFENSES

Sole Chapter CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

ART. 355. Imprudence and Negligence. — Any person who, by reckless imprudence, shall commit any act which, had it been intentional, would constitute a grave crime, shall suffer the penalty of ARRESTO MAYOR in its maximum PERIOD to PRISION CORRECCIONAL IN ITS MINIMUM PERIOD; if it would have constituted a less grave crime, the penalty of ARRESTO MAYOR in its minimum and medium PERIODS shall be imposed; if it would have constituted a light crime, the penalty of ARRESTO MENOR in its maximum PERIOD shall be imposed.

Any person who, by simple imprudence or negligence, shall commit an act which would otherwise constitute a grave crime, shall suffer the penalty of ARRESTO MAYOR in its medium and maximum PERIODS; if it would have constituted a less serious crime, the penalty of ARRESTO MAYOR in its minimum PERIOD shall be imposed.

When the execution of the act covered by this article shall have only resulted in damage to the property of another, the offender shall be punished by a fine ranging from an amount equal to the value of said damages to three times such value, but which shall in no case be less than Five Thousand Pesos (P5,000).

A fine not exceeding Forty Thousand Pesos (P40,000) and CENSURE shall be imposed upon any person who, by simple imprudence or negligence, shall cause some wrong which, if done maliciously, would have constituted a light crime.

In the imposition of these penalties, the court shall exercise their sound discretion, without regard to the rules prescribed in Article 52 of this Code.

The provisions contained in this article shall not be applicable:

- a) When the penalty provided for the offense is equal to or lower than those provided in the first two paragraphs of this article, in which case the court shall impose the penalty next lower in degree than that which should be imposed in the period which they may deem proper to apply.
- b) When, by imprudence or negligence and with violation of the TRAFFIC LAWS AND ORDINANCES the death of a person shall be caused, in which case the offender shall be punished by PRISION CORRECCIONAL IN ITS MEDIUM AND MAXIMUM PERIODS; PROVIDED, THAT IN CASE OF TWO OR MORE DEATHS CAUSED BY SUCH IMPRUDENCE OR NEGLIGENCE AND VIOLATION OF TRAFFIC LAWS AND ORDINANCES, THE OFFENDER SHALL BE PUNISHED BY PRISION MAYOR.

Reckless imprudence consists in voluntary, but without malice, doing or failing to do an act from which material damage results by reason of inexcusable lack of precaution on the part of the person performing or failing to perform such act, taking into consideration his employment or occupation, degree of intelligence, physical condition and other circumstances regarding persons, time and place.

Simple imprudence consists in the lack of precaution displayed in those cases in which the damage impending to be caused is not immediate nor the danger clearly manifest.

The penalty next higher in degree to those provided for in this article shall be imposed upon the offender who fails to lend on the spot to the injured parties such help as may be in this hand to give.

IMPRUDENCE, WHETHER CHARACTERIZED AS RECKLESS OR SIMPLE, IS A SINGLE QUASI-OFFENSE WHICH PUNISHES THE OFFENDER'S MENTAL ATTITUDE AND NOT THE CRIMINAL ACTS PRODUCED AS A CONSEQUENCE OF HIS OR HER LACK OF CARE OR FORESIGHT.
