HOUSE BILL NO. 11248

Introduced by: REP. TOBIAS “TOBY” M. TIANGCO

EXPLANATORY NOTE

Mental health is an integral component of overall health and well-being and has become an increasingly pressing concern among young people, particularly students in higher education. College and university students face academic, financial, social, and personal pressures during a stage of life when mental health conditions may first emerge or become more pronounced.

The World Health Organization (WHO) reports that one in seven persons aged ten (10) to nineteen (19) years experiences a mental disorder, with depression and anxiety among the leading causes of illness in this age group. Suicide is likewise the third leading cause of death globally among persons aged fifteen (15) to twenty-nine (29) years, an age group that includes a significant portion of the college and university population.

In the Philippines, the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA) reported a suicide mortality rate of 2.7 deaths per 100,000 population in 2024. At the same time, access to mental health services remains limited. The Department of Health’s National Objectives for Health 2023–2028 reports only seventy-five (75) mental health facilities nationwide and three hundred sixty-two (362) Mental Health Management and Assistance Program (MH-MAP) access sites, which the government seeks to expand to five hundred fifteen (515).

The WHO Mental Health Atlas 2024 Country Profile for the Philippines further reflects gaps in available human resources, reporting only 3.9 mental health workers per 100,000 population, including 0.2 psychiatrists and 0.3 psychologists per 100,000 population. The same profile also reported no functioning school-based mental health program under WHO reporting criteria, underscoring the need to strengthen accessible mental health services in educational settings.

This need is particularly relevant to State Universities and Colleges (SUCs). Data from the Commission on Higher Education (CHED) show that, as of June 26, 2025, there were one hundred thirteen (113) SUC main campuses and four hundred forty-two (442) satellite campuses nationwide. Their broad reach places SUCs in a strategic position to provide mental health promotion, early intervention, counseling, crisis response, and referral services to students, faculty, and personnel.

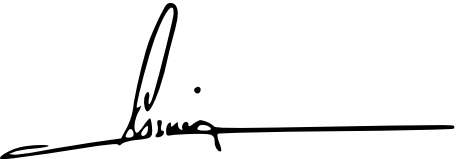

Republic Act No. 11036, otherwise known as the “Mental Health Act,” established the national policy for the promotion and protection of mental health and the delivery of integrated mental health services. Consistent with this policy and the Philippine Council for Mental Health Strategic Framework 2024–2028, there is a need to strengthen institutional mechanisms for mental health services within SUCs.

Thus, this bill seeks to institutionalize Mental Health Offices in SUC campuses and ensure the hiring, training, deployment, and professional development of qualified mental health personnel. Through accessible campus-based services, appropriate referral mechanisms, suicide prevention programs, and timely crisis intervention, SUCs can better support the mental health and well-being of their academic communities.

During the 19th Congress, a similar measure, which this representation co-authored, was approved on Third Reading by the House of Representatives.

In light of the foregoing, the passage of this bill is earnestly sought.
